FRAME launches new website look!

After many months of internal work FRAME is happy to announce website enhancements. From now on, the FRAME website will be used to publish news. Each month's newsletter will send out links to the new articles posted on FRAME’s website. To start out, each article is filed under a section represented by an icon for News, Exhibitions, Education, and Professional Exchanges. You will be able to click on each icon to get a list of all the news of one section.

We hope this will enhance your ability to find current FRAME news.

FRAME Education Starts a New Discussion

How the museum can become for young people a place for the exchange about contemporary social issues?

After the innovative project "Talking Art", which opened the museum to young people placed under judicial warrant, the cultural services of FRAME now address the various forms of violence at schools with the program "Curating a Culture of Respect / Des Maux - Des Musées - Des Maux."

Detroit Institute of Arts Director Graham W. J. Beal to retire

The Detroit Institute of Arts (DIA) announced recently that Director Graham W. J. Beal will retire as of June 30, 2015, after serving as director, president and CEO for nearly 16 years. Since joining the DIA, Beal has presided over some of the most significant accomplishments in the museum's history, including a tremendously successful reinvention of presenting art to the public; passage of a tri-county regional millage to support museum operations; and the DIA participation in the historic and unprecedented grand bargain initiative, which secured for future generations' the DIA's widely acclaimed art collection while also successfully facilitating resolution of the Detroit bankruptcy. Senufo: Art and Identity in West Africa opens in Cleveland February 22nd

Some of the most beloved artistic creations of sub-Saharan Africa, masks, figures, and decorative art labeled as Senufo, have been the subject of numerous studies by African, American, and European scholars since the 1930s. The interest in sculpture identified as Senufo was largely stimulated by its discovery by the artistic avant-garde in the early twentieth century. Pablo Picasso and Fernand Léger were among those to find inspiration in the oeuvre of their West African counterparts. Read more.
Museum Spotlight:
Sister Cities, Sister Museums: LACMA and Bordeaux

LACMA

Since its inception in 1965, the Los Angeles County Museum of Art (LACMA) has been devoted to collecting works of art that span both history and geography, in addition to representing Los Angeles's uniquely diverse population. Today LACMA is the largest art museum in the western United States, with a collection that includes over 120,000 objects dating from antiquity to the present. Among the museum’s strengths are its holdings of Asian art; Latin American art, ranging from masterpieces from the Ancient Americas to works by leading modern and contemporary artists; and Islamic art, of which LACMA hosts one of the most significant collections in the world.

The Bordeaux Museum of Fine Arts

Founded in 1801, the Bordeaux Museum of Fine Arts houses one of the top ten public French art collections of paintings, sculptures, and drawings. More than 8,000 works show a panorama of the principal time periods of west art from the 15th to 20th centuries, punctuated with works by Veronese, Titian, Rubens, Van Dyck, Reynolds, Delacroix, Corot, Renoir, Matisse or Picasso, and a rich collection of 18th century Dutch masterpieces. As well, the collection offers a view of regional artistic life from the 18th to the 20th centuries through the works of Lacour, Redon, Marquet, Lhote, and Dupas.
